Yellow pages for exporting, selling rights and importing

In recognition of the growing importance of internationalisation, and to encourage knowledge and exchange of publishing and literary products abroad, this year we have again updated and expanded the previous edition of Italian Books Abroad (as we have done since 2008).

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the internationalization of the publishing sector has become much more difficult in these days and it's still hard to say how the situation will evolve in the future. Several book fairs had to cancel or reschedule their 2020 edition; some of them have already announced new dates, while others will do so in the future. At the same time, new solutions to overcome mobility restrictions are being tested, such as transferring online initiatives for the general and professional audience or opening digital spaces to facilitate the import/export of publishing rights. For these reasons, we believe that updating the Italian Books Abroad is even more important this year.

Although basic, this tool is a useful support for promoting publishing relations between Italy and the rest of the world, since it contains addresses and reference details for both Italian and foreign operators concerned with the import/export of books and publishing rights.

Finding out the identity of professionals in the sector is a good starting point for an understanding of the market and its potential, and also for knowledge of who to turn to in order to obtain Italian language books to distribute in one's own country.

The need for a tool like this is even greater now that Italian titles see a strong increase in popularity, reaching a public that's getting continuously wider and receiving critical attention from various media. The criteria used for the selection of names are the same as in previous years.

For Italy the list does not include publishers who sell their own books directly abroad.

For foreign countries, alongside importers and distributors, we have also considered bookshops and bookshop chains which claim to have a wide assortment of Italian books and some of the Italian bookshops abroad which are better known and have a good reputation.

We have corrected the errors and gaps pointed out to us from the previous edition. However, as with any list, there will certainly continue to be gaps and inaccuracies. We take this opportunity to apologise to any companies which have «escaped» our attention and we invite readers to send us corrections and additions for the next update.

New Italian Books

The newitalianbooks.it is a digital platform that has been created to make the Italian publishing world more relevant internationally by enhancing its visibility in foreign markets, also by exploiting the network of Italian institutions abroad.

This bilingual website (Italian & English) provides detailed information on the latest Italian publications through a series of fact sheets provided directly by the publishers themselves. Each fact sheet contains a brief description of the work, together with a short extract (in both Italian and translation), a biography of the author and the contact details of whoever holds the rights of the work for translation.

newitalianbooks.it also provides information on both Italian and European programmes in support of translations, lists of publishers, agents and translators, and a calendar of events of the Italian publishing world. In addition to this wealth of information, the website also contains interviews with leading figures from the world of books, articles on foreign publishers of Italian works and an in-depth look at translations of Italian authors all over the world.

newitalianbooks.it is promoted by the Istituto della Enciclopedia Italiana Treccani, with the support of the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation and the Italian Centre for Books and Reading (Ministry of Cultural Heritage and Activities and Tourism), in collaboration also with the Italian Publishers Association.

Serena Libri is a small publishing house founded in 1997 by Annaserena Ferruzzi to present Italian literature to Dutch and Flamish readers, from the 1950s up to the present day, including well-known authors and young first-time writers. A great fan of detective fiction, in 1999 Annaserena Ferruzzi initiated a series of thrillers with La voce del violino by Andrea Camilleri and, at the same time, the debut novel of a very young writer, Alessandro Perisino.

So far Annaserena Ferruzzi has published 41 thrillers and 46 novels, among which a volume of short stories by 20 young Italian authors, written about their hometown at the request of the publisher. This panorama of young generation writers has received a lot of favorable reviews.

An important presence in the catalog of Serena Libri is that of Andrea Camilleri, the celebrated author of the Montalbano series, who passed away in 2019. This July, on the anniversary of his death, Serena Libri publishes a revised edition of his La luna di carta.

Most important Italian book fairs

Bologna Children's Book Fair

For 57 years Bologna Children's Book Fair (BCBF) has been the event in the children's publishing industry. Over 1,500 exhibitors and around 30,000 professional visitors from about 80 countries flock to the event each spring to experience the world of children's books, illustration and multimedia content. BCBF is much more than just a trade fair, both a vibrant business hub and a creative workshop space. The fair has succeeded in bringing together a unique and diverse global audience and is now an unmissable show where everyone can explore the changing and multi-layered children's publishing landscape led by the printed book. Every year the fair organises numerous awards, given to publishers, authors, illustrators, developers and book designers such as the BolognaRagazzi Awards and the BOP - Bologna Prize for the Best Children's Publishers of the Year. Winning one of the prizes or gaining a special mention means extraordinary visibility for a title in the publishing world, leading to the sale of rights in many countries. A major BCBF highlight, the Illustrators Exhibition is a unique international showcase of artists from different countries offering illustrators tangible professional opportunities. As BCBF is always up with the latest trends, it has introduced this year a brand-new focus on comics, one of the fastest growing segments in the publishing industry. To this exciting medium BCBF dedicates now a collective exhibition area (Comics Corner), a permanent category of the BolognaRagazzi Award and a series of international conferences that provide a deep dive into this topic from different perspectives. In 2020, responding to Covid-19 challenges, BCBF launched the BCBF Online Special Edition: four days of online business and creative events. Over 60,000 visitors attended this online edition (75% of non-Italians) with over 400,000 page views. On this occasion, the fair unveiled the Global Rights Exchange – a digital hub for rights trading powered by PubMatch – a service that is going to be permanent and constantly enhanced in order to adapt to exhibitors' needs. The BCBF Online Special Edition also offered an extensive digital programme of webinars, conferences, interviews, award ceremonies and online opportunities for illustrators that will continue to enrich the fair's programme in the future. Among these: BCBF Galleries, the brand new platform for book and art exhibitions, and a new exclusive blog, Fairtales, offering continuously updated information on BCBF activities across the world. And that's not all, in the next few months BCBF will be putting on many other initiatives looking forward to welcoming back to Bologna the international community of children's book professionals from 12 to 15 April 2021.

Più Libri Più Liberi (Rome)

The first fair dedicated to small and medium sized publishers, Più libri più liberi (also known as Rome Book Fair) conveys its message directly through its name: more books for more freedom. Every year more than 100,000 people visit the 5-days fair – which takes place at La Nuvola, the New Congress Center in Rome. Più libri più liberi has established itself as one of the most beloved fairs in Italy, both by publishers and readers. Being held on the first weekend of December, it is also a remarkable occasion to start shopping for Christmas presents, a fact that obviously has a positive financial outcome for participating publishers. One of the peculiarities of the fair is also its attention to professional visitors. Although it is indeed a generalist fair, the professional venue has acquired more and more importance throughout the years. Since 2018 the Right Centre, an innovative space created to promote the cooperation between both foreign and Italian publishers and literary agents, gave the fair a more international profile, with an Invitation Program and a Fellowship Program focused on a specific literary category. This Program has helped many publishers creating relations that blossomed into useful collaborations and a continuous rights trade. Other important parts of the fair are its general program, which always brings major authors and intellectuals to speak in front of interested crowds of readers, and its professional program, focused on bringing necessary knowledge to publishers. The fair also devotes a space to young people: they have the chance to participate to a literary competition and to attend laboratories and events designed for them. Due to Covid-19 emergency, the 2020 edition of the fair has been cancelled.

While awaiting a fully fledged relaunch in 2021, once again in the splendid Fuksas' Cloud, at the Eur, the AIE has joined Insieme - lettori, autori, editori, a book festival promoted by Roma Capitale, the Lazio Region and the Centre for books and reading (Cepell), in Rome from 1 to 4 October 2020.

Salone Internazionale del libro (Turin)

Salone Internazionale del Libro di Torino (SalTo) is the first and largest fair of Italian publishing. Every year, in May, the whole publishing world, from the largest publishing groups to the independent ones, takes part in the fair, involving writers, booksellers, librarians, agents, illustrators and translators. Responding to Covid-19 challenges, in May 2020 the Salone offered its public a special digital edition: the Salone Extra. In four days, 140 guests from all over the world had more than 60 meetings, naturally through streaming (the contents were watched in total for more than 64,000 minutes). More than 200 bookstores throughout Italy joined the SalTo in Libreria initiative simultaneously and 360 “restart books” were reported by publishers who would have been present at the event, ideally participating with the covers of the titles by means of which they will be aiming for a recovery. The digital experience of the Salone also generated a summer spin-off, the SalTo Notte, streamed through the fair’s website and channels late at night on Tuesdays. Since its first edition, the fair hosted writers who made the history of the literature, thus becoming an international festival of culture with editorial presentations, conferences, appointments, debates, performances, speakers and guests from all over the world featuring 1,200 events, 2,000 guests and 40 rooms for conferences every year. SalTo Rights Centre is a unique professional occasion for publishing rights sale: it facilitates meetings between professionals of the editorial world, through the exchange of rights – publishing, translation and film and tv series production. It is the international heart of the fair. It involves publishers and agents from 40 countries of the world who organize 3,500 one-to-one meetings. SalTo Diventi is an important educational project for the promotion of books and reading among young readers. It is entirely reserved to new generations and characterised by a cultural program, rich in meetings with important guests, free laboratories, bookstores and plays. SalTo Pro, meant for professionals of the publishing sector, it offers round tables, case history, courses for people interested in working in publishing, personal meetings and tailored advice.

AIE - Italian Publishers Association

The Italian Publishers Association (AIE) is the trade association of publishers of books, journals and digital publishing products operating in Italy. Main goals of the Association are advocating publishers' interest, fostering professional development in the publishing sector and promoting books, readership and copyright.
